ESCMID Postgraduate Education Course

Infection in older populations: the next challenges

Grenoble, France
12 – 14 September 2018

ESCMID Postgraduate Education Course

Infection in older populations: the next challenges

Organizer

- ESGIE (ESCMID Study Group for Infections in the Elderly)

Co-organizers

- GINGER (Groupe Infectio-Gériatrie, France)
- SPILF (Société de pathologie Infectieuse de langue Française)
- SFGG (Société Française de Gériatrie et Infectiologie)
- EUGMS (Special interest group on vaccine and Infectious diseases)
- University of Grenoble-Alpes

Course Coordinators

- Gaetan Gavazzi, Grenoble, France
- Cristina Mussini, Modena, Italy
- Emmanuel Forestier, Chambéry, France

Course Objectives

- To provide new insights and scientific exchanges on sepsis in older populations, including:
- Current views on the pathogenesis of sepsis and specificities in older populations.
 - Specific outcomes, clinical presentations in older populations and clinical relevance of these specificities.
 - Special aspects in the diagnosis, prognosis and management of sepsis and severe infection in older populations.
 - Specificities of the impact of old viruses (Influenza) but also of newer viruses (respiratory and emerging arboviruses).
 - The next challenges regarding prevention of infection.
 - New and old vaccines.
 - The research agenda for the coming decade.

Course Programme

Wednesday, 12 September 2018
